

David Sefton

Dave Sefton has been involved in the family farm at Broadview since 1969 where he farmed with his father and brother Bert. Dave presently farms with his wife Pauline and son Scott, and they grow flax, canola, soybeans, soft and winter wheat. Flax has been included in their rotation every year since 1970.

Dave was first elected to the Board of SaskFlax in 2001 and was re-elected in 2012. Dave has served on various ag boards since 1970 and remains involved in putting forward producers' interests. He is the Chair of the Board of the Western Grains Research Foundation and has sat on the Executive of the Flax Council of Canada. Dave served on the Flax Council's Triffid Committee as the representative of SaskFlax and, as he says "learned more about Triffid than he ever needed to know." He believes flax has a bright future if we work together to ensure Canadian flax meets our customers' demands.
