

Greg Sundquist

Greg Sundquist and his wife Jo-Anne farm 3,000 acres near Watrous, and grow flax, canola, cereals and some hay. They took over the farm in 2001. Greg retired from the Farm Credit Corporation in 2012 after 23 years of service. He became a director of SaskFlax in January 2013. SaskFlax has provided a great opportunity to learn about the flax industry and he enjoys the opportunity to work with the industry to address the challenges it faces.

Greg and Jo-Anne have two children. Son Trent, his wife Lisa, and grandson Elias; and daughter Angela, husband Joe, grandson Noah, and granddaughter Layla. They live in Prince Albert and Greg and Jo-Anne try to get there as much as possible.
